

College Student Can Be Animal Owners Too

Many college students go to institutions that are far away from their homes, leaving their loved ones behind but most importantly their animals. It is difficult for a college student to balance academics, extracurriculars, yet alone taking care of an animal. However, I am a testament that is all possible. Presented through this video is the best practices in managing being a college student and the best possible animal owner, but in my case a caretaker for my dog Hunter. Hunter is a dog owners dream, and I have made Syracuse University his home!

<https://youtu.be/tLtOFWMIULw>